

Lest We Forget

*Row on row the glorious dead rest,
Their skills were put to the test,
Soldiers drowning in a sea of blood,
Trenches filled with oozing mud,
Lest we forget.*

*Medals shining with prosperity,
Graves standing in solidarity,
Spitfires dive bombing into action,
Killing was their only intention,
Lest we forget.*

*The incessant barbaric shelling,
In the trenches lice and rats were dwelling,
The oriental poppies are new life emerging,
The soldiers were constantly scourging,
Lest we forget.*

*Animals were dying everywhere,
And the bugle would blare,
No-man's land was littered with corpses,
The forever loyal horses,
Lest we forget.*

*Tanks rampaging relentlessly,
Bullets fired tremendously,
The tanks only had one job: to be enraged,
The terrifying rattle of steel was engaged,
Lest we forget.*
